PHASE OF ACHIEVEMENTS

Dear Readers,

It gives me immense pleasure to present Volume 10 of SANDESH, capturing the inspiring journey of the Institute of Hotel Management, Catering Technology & Applied Nutrition, Ranchi, during January to July 2026.

The past seven months have been marked by remarkable growth, innovation, and collective achievement. From academic excellence and national-level competitions to industry collaborations, cultural celebrations, research initiatives, entrepreneurship programmes, and outstanding placement success, our students and faculty have continued to demonstrate the spirit of excellence that defines IHM Ranchi.

At our institute, education extends far beyond classrooms and practical laboratories. Every workshop, guest lecture, industry interaction, community outreach programme, and experiential learning opportunity is carefully designed to nurture hospitality professionals who possess technical competence, ethical values, leadership qualities, creativity, and a commitment to lifelong learning.

This edition of SANDESH reflects not only the milestones we have achieved together but also the vibrant culture of innovation, teamwork, and service that continues to shape our institution. Each page is a testament to the dedication of our students, faculty members, staff, alumni, and industry partners, whose unwavering support enables us to strengthen our contribution to hospitality education.

I extend my heartfelt congratulations and sincere appreciation to everyone who has contributed to these accomplishments. Your passion, perseverance, and pursuit of excellence continue to elevate the reputation of IHM Ranchi as one of India's leading institutions in hospitality education.

May this edition of SANDESH inspire every reader to embrace new opportunities, celebrate collective achievements, and continue striving for excellence with integrity, compassion, and professionalism.

MESSAGE FROM LITERATURE COMMITTEE

There are two kinds of people in this world: those who plan things well in advance, and the Literature Committee, which prefers to let deadlines develop character.

The first half of 2026 has been nothing short of Herculean. Between classes, practicals, competitions, celebrations, meetings, rehearsals, submissions and approximately seventeen things happening at exactly the same time, putting this newsletter together required coordination, patience, caffeine, and a remarkable ability to pretend everything was completely under control.

It wasn't.

Everyone was hella busy. Schedules were packed, deadlines multiplied, and somewhere in the middle of it all, another member joined the team because apparently the workload had not yet reached its final boss.

Then came the legendary 5 p.m. meetings. Five o'clock, traditionally reserved for tea, snacks and the hope of going home, became the hour for drafts, corrections, layouts and discussions that had absolutely no respect for the clock.

And, naturally, there were the scoldings. Some were gentle reminders. Some were not. There were moments when the Literature Committee collectively discovered that silence is, in fact, a very advanced form of communication. We learnt to recognise the difference between "Please look into this" and "PLEASE LOOK INTO THIS" with an accuracy that deserves academic recognition.

Someone was always unavailable. Someone had a holiday. Someone had a perfectly legitimate reason for not being present. And somehow, one person was always absent. Not necessarily the same person, but with a consistency that almost felt professionally coordinated. If everyone was present, it was suspicious.

Then came the great picture hunt. A single photograph could become the most elusive object known to mankind. Messages were sent. Reminders followed. "Sir/Ma'am, just one picture" became less of a request and more of a formal plea. We chased photographs with the determination of investigative journalists, only to receive them precisely when we had stopped expecting them.

And yet, somehow, we kept going.

Because beneath all the chaos were people who cared. People who showed up after long days, rewrote paragraphs, hunted down information, checked facts, argued over commas and survived meetings that were supposed to last "just ten minutes".

That is what made this committee work.

A Literature Committee is not merely a group that knows how to write. It is a group that knows how to turn chaos into coherence. It is proofreading at unreasonable hours, sending one last reminder that is never actually the last reminder, and opening FINAL_FINAL.docx only to discover that FINAL_FINAL_USETHIIS_FINAL.docx has already entered the conversation.

This newsletter is more than a collection of events from January to July. It is a record of a campus that refused to stay still. And we are rather proud to have turned some of that beautiful chaos into words.

So, with considerable pride, questionable sleep schedules, and just enough emotional damage to call the experience educational, we present this edition of Sandesh.

To everyone who contributed, corrected, coordinated, tolerated our messages, survived the scoldings, attended the infamous 5 p.m. meetings, or helped us locate that one picture:

Thank you. | You made the chaos worthwhile.

And to the next deadline: | We see you. We have survived worse.
